TRADE CRISIS DISCUSSED BY MELLON

STOCK TRADING, WAR DEBTS UP AT TRADE MEET

Banker Would Abolish Floor Trading and Curb Marginal Transactions

ASKS NEW LEADERSHIP

Briton Points to Action Taken by Empire to Clear Up Debt Situation

Washington—(P)—Julius Barnes, who last week urged revisions in the Hawley-Smoot tariff rates, told the International Chamber of Commerce today it would be "most unfortunate" to reopen the tariff question in the next session of congress. Amplifying his discussion of the tariff before the United States Chamber of Commerce in Atlantic City, Barnes, who is chairman of the board of the United States chamber, said American business hoped the revision of the tariff rates by the tariff commission under the flexible clause of the Hawley-Smoot act would take the question out of politics.

In his speech to the United States chamber, Barnes suggested revision of American tariff rates would improve foreign trade and aid in the recovery of business.

"American business," Barnes said today, "hopes that the administration of our tariff laws by the tariff commission will go a long way toward permanently taking the tariff out of politics. Business, through the chamber of commerce of the United States, for years has urged that the tariff be treated as an economic and not as a political issue."

Washington—(P)—Abolition of floor trading, prohibition of marginal transactions for less than $10,000 and elimination of the "daily statement" with its business daily call money rates were suggested by the International Chamber of Commerce congress today by Melvin A. Traynor of Chicago.

The convention also heard its first discussion of the effects of war debts on the business of the world.

Traynor, who is president of the First National bank of Chicago, demanded a new business leadership which will take into account the "element of human conduct in economic affairs."

He said the human element, influenced by "ambition, cupidity, and

SOUTHERN ARGENTINA HIT BY HEAVY STORMS

Buenos Aires—(P)—Violent storms, accompanied by temperatures below zero and high tides, are striking southern Argentina and several coast towns are reported to be flooded.

Rough seas have caused great damage to shore construction at Mar del Plata and in Necocleas and inhabitants of the towns of Patagonia and Videmia had to take refuge on higher land because the majority of houses were inundated by the highest tide reported in recent years.

ITALY PREPARES TO ISSUE INTERNAL LOAN

Rome—(P)—Italy will issue an internal loan of four billion lire (about $210,000,000), the council of ministers decided today.

It will be used to pay off the 3 1/2 per cent and 5 per cent consolidated bonds falling due July 1, and treasury bonds due Nov. 15. Holders of these bonds may exchange them for the new loan.

The bonds also carry a lottery provision by which the holders of certain numbers will receive cash prizes of 1,000,000 lire each, two of half a million and four of 100,000.

New York To Tax Estates 20 Million

Inheritance Assessments to Cut Heavily Into Income Tax Deficit

New York—(P)—Officials estimated today that inheritance taxes due New York state as a result of deaths of wealthy citizens, would exceed $20,000,000.

The amount it was believed would go far toward offsetting the shrinkage in income taxes this year.

The death of George F. Baker, reported to be the "third richest man in the country," was the latest.

Others were Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Miss Ella Wendel, last of a line which built its fortune on New York real estate; Joseph LeBlanc, whose entire fortune was in the theatre business; and Mrs. Nathan Straus, merchant philanthropist, and Col. Michael Friedman, head of E. Altman and Co., department store.

Although authoritative information was lacking, it was surmised today that tax payments on the Baker estate would exceed that of the late Payne Whitney's estate, which holds the high record.

The state claimed $15,000,000 of that fortune.

As far as tax purposes are concerned, the Baker estate may be valued greatly by bequests to charitable and public causes or by the disclosure of gifts during Mr. Baker's lifetime. Such was the case in the estates of Nathan Straus, Col. Friedman and Miss Wendel.

INVESTIGATE DEATHS OF MOTHER, CHILDREN

Hurley—(P)—The deaths of Mrs. Paddy Lanza, 29, and her two children, Patsy, 4, and Mary Lou, 2, were being investigated by authorities today.

Lanza, well known in Wisconsin and upper Michigan as a boxing and wrestling referee, returned from Ironwood, Mich., where he is employed as an automobile salesman and found the bodies in the gas-filled kitchen of their home here.

Three gas jets were open on the stove, authorities said.

Four doctors, assisted by an in-hall squad from Ironwood were unable to revive the mother and her children.

MAGEE APPOINTED TO FEDERAL RESERVE BODY

Washington—(P)—President Hoover today appointed W. W. Magee of Bennington, Neb., to be a member of the Federal Reserve board.

Magee will succeed the late Edward H. Cunningham. He will be known as the farm member of the board. The new reserve board member was educated in the public schools of Nebraska and at the University of Chicago. He has been an active farmer for many years.

LETTS NAMED JUDGE

Washington—(P)—President Hoover today appointed former Representative Letts of Iowa to be a judge of the district supreme court.

HONOR MRS. COOLIDGE

New York—(P)—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge is one of four Americans who will receive the gold medal of the National Institute of Social Sciences at the organization's annual dinner on Thursday.

Bucharest, Rumania—(P)—Princess Ileana, 25-year-old daughter of Queen Mother Marie, is betrothed to Archduke Anton de Bourbon, nephew of the late Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary.

The engagement ceremony has been held in the castle of Urmach near Freiburg, Germany. Those attending included Queen Marie, the Grand Duke Cyril and Princess Thira of Russia and the prince and princess of Hohenzollern.

Princess Ileana's name has been linked with many a member of European royalty, the prince of Wales, King Boris of Bulgaria and Crown Prince Humbert of Italy. These rumors were put to rest in January, 1930, when it was announced she would wed Count Alexander of Hoesberg, son of the prince of Steas. Recently, the engagement was cancelled under unexplained circumstances.

Accompanied by Queen Marie, she visited the United States in 1926 and was well received. She dined at the White House, attended a dance at West Point and narrowly escaped injury in an automobile accident in Chicago. She sailed for home with her heart intact.

Archduke Anton is 30 years old and an aviator of note. When the Austro-Hungarian monarchy fell after the war, he went to Spain with the royal family and became an engineer. Having bought a plane from his earnings, he was awarded a prize by Austrian authorities last July as the first flier to touch Vienna in a round-trip flight. The wedding is scheduled for June.

He is the son of the late Archduke Salvator and Princess Blanche of Bourbon.

After a hastily summoned session of the cabinet, King Carol I. telegraphed his and the government's sanction of the engagement to the German emperor in which the couple are remaining for the present.

Princess Ileana was reported to have met her fiancé last year when she visited Spain and became greatly attached to him on short notice. It is believed to have a good position as consultant in the construction bureau of an airplane factory in Barcelona.

It was believed in some quarters here that the couple will make their home in Rumania following the marriage and that the archduke may plant a new vineyard there. It is felt that the princess would not be disposed to depart permanently from Rumania and reside in Spain.

His elder brother, the Archduke Leopold, was involved in a legal dispute not long ago in the United States concerning the disposal of valuable necklaces which belonged to the Archduchess Maria Theresa. He spent some time in jail in New York but was acquitted last November.

ALFONSO WON'T TRY TO HAMPER REPUBLIC

Madrid—(P)—Former King Alfonso in an interview published today in the newspaper A B C, says he is determined to place no obstacle in the path of the provisional Republican government.

"I am still his own country, he told the newspaper London correspondent while in England, and he expressed the hope that all kings still on their thrones would refrain from influencing the affairs of the own states to the detriment of the people."

He reiterated that he had not surrendered the rights of the Bourbon family to the Spanish throne and justified his establishment of a dictatorship in Spain with the declaration that he believed the constitution, a revolutionary government, said, when he became convinced the people wanted a change.

He will return to Spain, he told the correspondent, only if the people, speaking through the ballot box, call him back.

WITCHCRAFT ALLEGED IN PLEA FOR DIVORCE

Milwaukee—(P)—Lee Parker, 30, today asked for a divorce from his wife, Marie, 19. Lee in his petition states most of the trouble in his married life has been caused by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Sabina Sherman, witchcraft.

Mrs. Sherman, he says, interfered with his domestic life constantly and told her daughter she would marry a "worthless husband." Marie, the husband said, was convinced her mother's power of sorcery was genuine.

FIFTH VICTIM NEAR DEATH IN BITTER FIGHT

Clash Is Renewal of Disorders in Harlan Coal Field Dispute

BULLETIN

Harlan, Ky.—(P)—Four men were killed and one probably fatally wounded in a clash between deputy sheriffs and a group of unidentified men today near Everts, according to a revised list of casualties reported to Sheriff J. H. Blair here.

Harlan, Ky.—(P)—A deputy sheriff is known to have been slain and several other officers and several members of a crowd of unidentified men are believed to have been killed in a clash at Everts, about ten miles from here today.

Authorities here said it was a renewal of disorders resulting from the labor situation in the Harlan coal fields.

Deputies George Dawn and Estes Cox, the only two of the force of 13 deputies who returned here, said Deputy Jim Daniels, 37, was killed.

With bullet wounds in the arm, side and face, Cox said the deputies were returning to Harlan and near Everts a crowd of men hidden behind railroad ties and trees opened fire. Daniels grabbed a machine gun and leaped from the automobile but before he had time to fire he was shot through the head.

Dawn and the other deputies returned the fire from the other side of the road. Cox said he and Dawn hurried to Harlan for reinforcements and that when they left at least five deputies and one or four of the attacking band were lying dead or wounded on the road. Cox said Deputy Otto Lee was one of the first to fall and was believed to be dead.

Today's outbreak came on the heels of the calling of a special grand jury to convene tomorrow to investigate the disorders which have resulted in bloodshed and loss of property in the Harlan coal fields.

Count von Luckner Seized By 2 Policemen In Texas

Dallas, Texas—(P)—A ride two policemen gave Count Felix von Luckner, German naval officer, was under investigation here today.

The count, credited with sinking a large amount of allied shipping in the World war, said he was indignant when patrolmen stopped him as he walked to a club here early Sunday morning. He denied they had a right to question him.

Then he was rushed by motor car to the city hall, where his identity, doubted by the officers, was established.

Police Chief C. W. Trammell said reports of some witnesses indicated the officers were not entirely to blame. Policemen were instructed to question persons found on the streets after midnight. Chief Trammell said, but were required to be courteous.

"I had intended to say nothing," said the count, who is here on a visit. "But since the incident has become known, I'll tell about it."

He said his wrists were seized from behind and he was searched for weapons. His announcement that he was Count von Luckner brought a derisive laugh, he said. He protested seizure of a silver pipe given him by the late Czar Nicholas. It was restored later.

State Alleges New Brothers' Witness Forced To Testify

SAYS WORKER'S JOB MENACED BY HIS UNION

Brothers' Plea for New Trial Under Advisement by Judge Sabath

Chicago—(P)—The prosecutors of Leo Brothers for the Alfred Lingle murder, answered affidavit with affidavit today in their effort to prevent a new trial of the convicted killer, charging that a newly proffered defense witness was ordered by a union member to testify or go to jail.

Louis McCann, a structural iron worker, had made affidavit he was a witness of the Lingle murder, and that Brothers was not the killer. James McShane, assistant state's attorney, stated in an affidavit today that McCann had identified Brothers as the murderer but had refused to testify. McCann, the prosecutor, said, related that he was told by a "friend" that if he wanted to work again, he was going down the line for Brothers.

The state closed its arguments against a new trial before noon and Judge Joseph Sabath said he would announce his decision May 8.

JORDAN PLEADS NOT GUILTY
Chicago—(P)—Frank Jordan, confessed killer of two policemen, pleaded not guilty at his arraignment today before Chief Justice John P. McGorty of the criminal court. Trial date was set for Thursday.

Counsel for the man whose attempted arrest on a bank robbery charge precipitated a running gun fight on Michigan-ave April 30, asked the court for continuances both before and after the plea. The requests brought a spirited argument with State's Attorney John A. Swanson, who never before had personally entered a case.

Judge McGorty agreed with Swanson that Attorney George Dieber needed to consult with no one but his client to enter a plea and ordered the clerk to read the indictments charging Jordan, alias Carl Carlson and Walter McCoy, with the murder of Patrolmen Anthony Ruffy and Patrick Durkin. The defendant answered "not guilty" to each one.

Dieber said if he failed to substantiate "certain" ideas he was looking for, his client would probably change his plea to guilty.

Mayor Anton J. Cermak, who took a hand in the case shortly after the shooting, said Jordan had confessed his part in it, and robbery of the Neponset, Ill., bank.

Dieber and Attorney Michael Brodinski asked the trial date be continued because of the "flaming mind" of the popular "Doc" Jordan. The court promised to consider the request Thursday if the defense used no dilatory tactics, "such as demanding a change of venue," and to assign the case to another judge if the defense wished.

Urge Seniors To Continue Their Work

All Lawrence college seniors who are planning to take post graduate work at some time or other are advised to continue their studies, next fall by Dr. Henry M. Wriston, in explaining spring registration at Lawrence college. Because of the comparative scarcity of suitable positions, President Wriston pointed out that it is to the student's advantage to study now and prepare himself for the opportunities which may develop later.

In explaining the reason for spring registration at the college Dr. Wriston pointed out that early registration, taking place several months before the fall courses begin, gives the students time to make a more leisurely and careful choice of studies.

Several new courses are being included in the curriculum next fall, according to the announcement of courses issued last week. A course of introductory English literature has been added, and a course in the history and appreciation of music for liberal arts students, under the direction of Miss Gladys Ives Brainard, will be given for the first time next fall.

OPERATION OF ROTARY CLUBS STUDY THEME

"Eat and Run" Type of Meeting Deplored by Group Speaker

The mechanics of Rotary in the operation of the organization was the theme discussed by the club service luncheon group of the tenth district of Rotary International, at the Knights of Pythias hall, Neenah, yesterday afternoon. The discussions were directed into the channels of program difficulties, a Rotarian's duty toward a fellow stranger, the classification problem, and the cultivation of good fellowship.

Dan Brownell, Ashland, past governor of the tenth district, president, and Russell Williams, International secretary, Chicago, officially represented Rotary International.

Mr. Russell explained in his message from Rotary International that

Entire Club Registers
The Appleton Rotary club was registered 100 per cent at the meetings of the tenth district 1931 conference in Neenah and Menasha yesterday.

Interest in club operation has doubled in the past six months. He pointed out that the club is a concentration center of ideas, the success of which lies in the organization of the information brought into the club, the planning of these ideas, and immediate action on the part of the members.

Charles D. Symonds, past president of Iron Mountain club, who was nominated governor of the tenth district yesterday morning, assailed a recent article in the last issue of the Rotary magazine. He said that the article was a youthful declaration that Rotary has too many old men in its ranks and that he did not share the pessimism of this young man. Mr. Symonds declared that of the two types of old men, Rotary had those who were young in spirit.

Advices Club Bulletin
Mr. Symonds explained the importance of a club bulletin saying that every club, irrespective of size, should have one. These bulletins, according to Mr. Symonds, inform the members of current Rotarian activities, the inside pages bring news from Rotary International, and keep up an intangible interest within the club.

In the discussion of a Rotarian's duty to his club, Harlow A. Wood, Munising, Mich., deplored the "eat and run" type of Rotarian meeting which he has found as a visiting Rotarian. He stressed the importance of fellowship, especially toward a visiting member.

"The club," he said, "should teach and show members how to do things, while the individual must carry on

CITY FIRE, WATER COMMITTEE TO MEET

The city fire and water committee will meet at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the city hall, according to Mayor John Goodland, Jr. Matters referred to the committee at the last meeting of the common council will be discussed.

CITY WORK BUREAU TO OPEN THIS WEEK

Expect Registration Will Begin When Cards Are Delivered

Registration of unemployed in the new municipal employment bureau, established at the city hall, expected to start this week, according to W. L. Lyons, city employment officer. Mr. Lyons said that registration will start as soon as the necessary blanks are printed and delivered. They are in process of being printed now.

Since the first announcement of the establishment of the new bureau was made about a week ago, Mr. Lyons said there has been considerable interest evidenced by people throughout the city. He expects that there will be a large registration as soon as the bureau is ready to start the work.

The employment bureau is being established at the advice of the Appleton Citizens' Committee on Employment. It is to be a permanent city function.

The club is a machine, the impetus of which must be done by the members.

Favor Local Talent
In the interests of this program committee, Charles Towles, immediate past president of the Kaukauna club, stressed the importance of utilizing the talent of the man within the club. He said that it is the interest creative among the club members that makes the club a success. Mr. Towles presented copies of a technical chart to explain the division of duties of the program committee, a method used by both Kaukauna and Appleton clubs.

Dr. George A. Shaw, past president of the Manitowish club, outlined the difficulties of the classification plan in Rotary which limits membership according to occupations. The question in dealing with the perplexities of membership, Dr. Shaw said, lies in either keeping an iron-clad rule with Rotary International or not keeping it. He explained that some clubs are taking more than their quota in the various occupations while other clubs adhere strictly to the international ruling that no more than 10 per cent of a club membership may be allowed in any occupation.

Taking the spirit of fellowship backward to the lives of Whittier, Longfellow and other New Englanders, Senator William H. Eaton, New London, expressed "Fellowship as the Heart of Rotary" in the lights of great Americans.

Expect to Pour Concrete for First Floor Next Week

Laying of stone for the walls of the new Appleton post office, under construction at the corner of N. Superior and W. Washington-sts., started yesterday, according to William Cooke, federal engineer in charge of inspection work on the project. Only four stone masons were employed, but several more will be added later.

Brick laying for the foundation of the building, has been practically completed. About 140,000 bricks were used in the foundation. Mr. Cooke said, and a total of more than 500,000 bricks will have been laid when the building is completed.

About 40 men are now employed there. Carpenters Tuesday were engaged in constructing forms for laying the first floor. This work is expected to start next week. Several carloads of steel, to be used in laying the reinforced concrete floors, arrived yesterday.

Two boilers for the heating unit have arrived and have been placed in the basement. Two photographs of the building, to show the progress that has been made in the last month, were mailed to the federal department at Washington today by Mr. Cooke. These photographs, taken from different angles, are sent to the department each month.

PRaises DECISION IN RECENT CATTLE CASE

Madison—(AP)—The cost of several hundred court cases have been saved taxpayers of Wisconsin and the entire structure of bovine tuberculosis eradication has been strengthened by the recent decision of Circuit Judge Gustave G. Gehrz, Milwaukee, according to R. M. Orchard, counsel for the department of agriculture and markets.

The judge dismissed a case brought by a farmer who challenged the right of the state to kill cattle which do not react to the tuberculin test unless full damages are paid.

PHONE COMPANY SPENDS $28,500 FOR NEW CABLES

Announce Completion of New Underground and Aerial Projects

H. M. Fellows, manager of the Appleton Wisconsin Telephone Co., exchange, has announced completion of extensive additions to outside plant facilities in this city. Additional underground and aerial cable was installed in various sections of the city, he stated. The work was started last December and involved an expenditure of approximately $28,500.

The project consisted of placing five and one half miles of aerial and one and one tenth miles of underground cable. A considerable portion of the aerial cable was constructed on Wisconsin-ave. Various aerial cable replacements were made throughout the city. Underground cable of various sizes ranging from 51 to 1,212 pairs of wires, was installed on Superior-st.

An aerial cable, containing 101 wires was constructed on the Kimberly road along Highway 41. The cable provides additional facilities to efficiency and economically serve subscribers at Kimberly. Open wire lines along the Kimberly road will be removed.

GOOD PROGRESS MADE WITH REEVALUATION

Good progress is being made by the workers who are reevaluating the city, according to L. J. Rhein, an employee of the Wisconsin Tax commission, who has charge of the work. There are 10 men working throughout the city under direction of Mr. Rhein. They probably will not finish the work for about two months. Mr. Rhein said that the workers are noticing a much better spirit of cooperation among the citizens. He said this is no doubt due to the program of education which the city has adopted in an effort to teach citizens that this reevaluation is not intended merely as a method of increasing assessments. Mr. Rhein pointed out that the work of his group would furnish the city with an invaluable record of information about its property and that these records would be of great aid to every city office.

WEIGHT AS A MEASURE OF TIRE QUALITY IS NOT INCLUDED IN THIS TABLE FOR TWO REASONS:

- 1st, Because no two tires of the same brand and size weigh exactly alike, and
- 2nd, Because quality of rubber and cotton fabric used, rather than the compounded weight after being mixed with other ingredients is the determining factor. Reclaimed or second hand rubber weighs more than new rubber. Tires containing a large percentage of second hand rubber, therefore, weigh more than those made entirely of new rubber—even though the tires are exactly alike in size—so "Weight as a standard by which to measure tire quality MEANS NOTHING."

The TRAIL BLAZER is Ward's second quality tire. We frankly admit it. But—certain manufacturers and dealers, jealous of Ward's deserved preeminence in the tire industry, are making and publishing misleading statements about Ward's tires. They give specifications which are NOT those of Ward's tires; and they then compare the prices of their second quality tires with those of our first quality tires—the famous Riversides. The table above shows accurately the manner in which TRAIL BLAZERS compare in quality and in price with other well known makes.

These other misleading advertisements (and if they are not intended to deliberately fool tire consumers, what IS their purpose?) also say that "Mail Order Tires are made by some unknown manufacturer..." Well, Ward's tires are made by one of the largest tire companies in the world; a company that has always been famous for the fine quality of its products!

No Montgomery Ward tire advertisement is complete without mentioning Ward's first quality Riversides. Riverside tires are one of the best known brands in America. They have been sold for 19 years. They, too, are made by the same large tire manufacturer mentioned above. They are the finest quality it is possible to produce. They are backed by the most liberal tire guarantee ever written. And they sell for less than any first quality nationally advertised tire on the market! These sound like sensational claims. But Montgomery Ward & Co.—one of the largest and oldest merchandising institutions in the world—now in its 60th year in business—the originators of the "Satisfaction Guaranteed or your Money Back" guarantee—stands back of every claim made in this advertisement.

Here, therefore, is the correct story about Ward's TRAIL BLAZERS: They are every bit as good as other second quality tires (better than most, as the chart above will indicate) but they sell for less. Like all of Ward's tires, TRAIL BLAZERS are sold with an absolute guarantee of satisfactory service without limit as to time or mileage. If you do not need Riverside quality buy Trail Blazers—and save more money!

Eau Claire Gets 1932 District Convention Of Rotary Club

GREEN BAY WINS CONFERENCE OF CLUB OFFICERS

Speeches Close Tenth District Session at Menasha This Morning

Feed the youth of today American citizenship, through the home, the schools, the churches, and the play life, and they cannot help becoming good citizens, was the message Dr. J. L. Alexander, director of American Youth foundation, St. Louis, Mo., at the closing session of the conference of the tenth district of Rotary International at Menasha Tuesday morning.

Other speeches during the morning session were given by Dean James Clark Graham of Ripon college, and Russell Williams, official representative of Rotary International.

Eau Claire was chosen as the city for next year's district conference, and the assembly of presidents and secretaries in July will be held at Green Bay. The attendance trophy was presented to Marquette. Last year Neenah took the trophy at the Marquette convention. Appleton's registration at the convention was 97.

New Governor Talks
Charles Symonds of Iron Mountain, Mich., nominated for governor of the Tenth district yesterday, spoke briefly, and the Rev. Fred J. Jordan of Eau Claire, retiring governor, was presented with a gift for his year of service.

Dr. Alexander, after declaring that if the youth of today is any different from a century ago it is a little better, divided youth into four classes. The first set, he said, is the scum on the pool, while the body of American youth, is clean, honest, and above-board. Declaring that the "fast set" is the result of the modern rush to get ahead, he pointed out that there is no way of wrecking a child than giving him lots of money without supervision.

The radicals argue and argue and talk and talk, he said, most of the time about something which they have no background. "Found chiefly in colleges, when they get out into the world the majority of them become the staid stand-patters of the next generation, while a few of them end up like the Sinclair Lewis and Menckens."

Then the Normal Kind
The "Garden-variety," which he said represents 71 per cent of youth, leads a normal though monotonous younger life, marries, has children, and dies.

The fourth class leads the "garden variety" normal life in youth, but is possessed with a passion to become something in later life. These boys and girls he declared, become the leaders that mold civilization. He pleaded that organization work not only with the underprivileged child, but that they give support to the youth that gives evidence of leadership.

The problem of youth, he felt, is that it has to step into a civilization that is the product of adult life. Most of the small problems with youth, he said, are the result of the adult, not understanding youth. The ideal American citizen, he explained, is a free man who shares governmental activities and respects the law, he is full of vitality, self-respecting, clean, generous, philanthropic, tolerant, and a good neighbor. Birthplace means nothing, he argued, amplifying with the statement that if a half dozen kittens are born in an oven it does not mean that they will be biscuits.

Declaring that men of the type of Rotarians are the intelligent minority, he said that upon their decisions depend how civilization will go. He urged the development of a national culture, pointing out that if the choices were left in the hands of the masses there would be no good drama, no art, no music. Talking of the two slogans, "the damned," and "public be pleased," he said that the latter was probably the most dangerous. The masses are children, he said, and it is up to the intelligent minority to guide them, and any progress is to be made.

Three things are needed to survive, he pointed out, are less of interest in citizenship, disrespect for lawmakers, and too wide a variation between the high classes and the low classes. The opportunity of Rotary to promote peace and understanding among nations, sorely tried, with war grinding, and the plasticity of the Rotary International machine were discussed by Russell Williams. He told how despite World War wounds international meetings in Europe are becoming more and more frequent, and that the French and Germans and other war enemies are now discussing international relations, and are promoting press material and an interchange of speakers in the interests of world peace.

The Premier Four of Chicago entertained at the conference dinner at the North Shore Country club Monday evening, after which the Governor's ball was held at Cinderella Gardens. Stunts were in charge of William Kollet of Neenah. Bannister Graduate entertainers were also on the program.

BENEFITS, DAMAGES ASSESSED BY BOARD
Assessments of benefits and damages on several streets which are to be paved this season were made at a meeting of the board of public works in the city hall Monday afternoon, according to Carl J. Becker, city clerk. A public hearing on the hall at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon.

ELECT JOHNSON NEW PRESIDENT OF LIONS CLUB

GEORGE E. JOHNSON

George E. Johnson was elected president of the Lions club Monday noon at the weekly meeting, succeeding J. R. Whitman. Mr. Johnson long has been active in Lions work, and has been chairman of several committees.

Other officers elected yesterday were: J. N. Smith, first vice president; J. N. Fisher, second vice president; John Hollenbeck, third vice president; Erik L. Madson, secretary; E. A. Dettman, treasurer; R. M. Connelly, Lion tamer; T. N. Belanger, tall twister; and David Carlson, C. Elmer Robt., directors.

Joe Mallory acted as emcee for the business meeting with sleight of hand tricks.

CIVIL WAR VETERANS GUESTS OF LEGION

Bruce Purdy Awarded Eagle Scout Badge at Meeting Last Night

Nine veterans of the Civil war were guests of Oney Johnson post legionaries at the monthly meeting of the post Monday evening at Elk club. They were O. F. Chamberlain and Herman Paul, Seymour; Charles Brown, Leonard Merkle and "Grandpa" Langstadt, Appleton; John Lawe, Kaukauna; Murray McCullum, Thel Sherron and Robert Lawe, Neenah.

The veterans were seated on the lodge roof stage when the meeting opened, were introduced to the assemblage, and several gave short talks. They were welcomed by Marcellus C. Grant, past state commander of the American legion, who said the legion is attempting to carry on the ideas of the Civil war veterans. Other features of the entertainment program included several sketches and songs by a group including Robert M. Connelly, Martin Van Roy, Betty Leven, and "Smiling Bob" Briggs. About 100 scouts, members of Troop 4, Oney Johnson post troop, received merit badges from their scoutmaster, Theodore Frank.

Another member of the troop, Bruce Purdy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Purdy, was awarded the Eagle scout badge, the highest honor a scout can obtain. Herb Hellig of the alley council made the award. Oney Johnson post membership was announced as 804 veterans, making the post the largest in the state. Leslie Smith submitted the membership report. Other business before the meeting was with reference to Memorial day plans, the July 4 program, poppy day sales, junior baseball and memorial church services the Sunday before Memorial day.

Overnight, Appleton's latest attraction for the curious has become a sensation. ## For Sale Cheap! One Trout Fishing Kit In Good Shape Officer Charles Steidl, of the county motorcycle squad, turns slightly crimson every time someone mentions trout. It seems that this is a delicate subject with him. Last week Officer Steidl did considerable talking, it appears from ex-plaintiffs, about a fishing kit. The kit was a self-styled ability and progress as a fisherman. He talked loud and long about how good he was. He told tales of the big catches he would bring back from his week-end trip to Indian Head river, in the northern part of the state.

Only a few people know about this river, Charley said, and they are all experts with the rod and reel. Charley modestly admitted that he is such an expert. Last Saturday he donned his fishing clothes. He packed his fishing tackle and took along an immense creel—to hold his catch, he explained.

Yesterday Charley came back. Proudly, with his chest abutting, he told his fish stories. He presented the sheriff with a large number of trout for a "fish fry." And then came the denouement.

In the package with the fish was a slip marked "paid." It appeared Charley had bought the fish! So now Charley hesitates to talk about his fishing trip.

LAUNCH "CLEAN UP" WEEK DRIVE IN CITY

Street Department Trucks Making Rounds in Wards

The annual "clean up" week was launched in this city Monday morning with five city-owned street-cleaning trucks collecting rubbish in the various wards. The work will require about four days, according to Mayor John Goodland, Jr.

Trucks Monday picked up rubbish in most of the Third ward, while others made collections in the Fifth, Second and First wards. Rubbish in the Third ward is being dumped in the ravine at the foot of Sixth-st. near the courthouse, and on the south side of Fifth-st. between S. State and S. Walnut-sts.

Every kind of rubbish imaginable was collected Monday, according to Theodore Albrecht, street commissioner. At some residences trucks picked up a full load, the load consisting of several barrels and the remains of old cars, he stated.

POLICE SEEK MAN ON BAD CHECK CHARGE

Ball Player Thought to Have Left City After Purchasing Car

Police are seeking Pat H. Kelly, 208 N. State-st., who is said to have disappeared late Sunday night after purchasing a Chrysler sedan from the Gibson company, Inc., 211-13 W. College-ave., and paying for it with a check for $1,150, drawn on the First Wisconsin National bank of Milwaukee. The check is worthless, according to the Gibson company.

Kelly, who is said to have moved here recently from Milwaukee, was seeking a berth as third baseman with the Appleton base ball club of the Fox river valley league. He played with the Appleton team at a practice game against Waupaca here Sunday, April 26.

The ball player conferred with the Gibson company for several days before he finally decided Saturday afternoon to purchase the machine. The check he gave in payment was sent to Milwaukee, and a call was received early Monday morning declaring Kelly had no account there.

Police learned that Kelly had been seen in Appleton about 11 o'clock Sunday night. Since that time he has been missing. Kelly is described as being 30 years old, five feet, nine inches tall; weighs 175 pounds; has a clean cut appearance and a sandy complexion with auburn hair. When last seen he was wearing a dark gray suit and a brown hat.

The car which Kelly purchased is a 1931 model, Royal Eight Chrysler. It had the 1931 license, D-54225.

The order is expected to affect about 800 persons. All Waupaca school children have been required to submit to vaccinations, according to Dr. F. C. Wood, city physician. The measures are being taken as a precaution, Dr. Wood said, because it is not known how many wild cases there may be that have not been reported.

Danger to Health in risking doubtful substitutes for Kotex

It's a temptation, sometimes, to save a few pennies by accepting a substitute for Kotex.

But what a costly saving it may be! What guarantee have you of the hygienic safety of this substitute, if you know nothing of its makers? Is it fit for this personal use? How was it made? Where?

When your choice is Kotex, you're backed by medical approval. The best hospitals use it. They appreciate the splendid purity of Kotex, the exacting care with which it is made.

You should never consider satisfactory protection of lower standards. Insist on Kotex. Genuine Kotex. Comfort, too, is assured by Kotex. Laminated layers of Cellucotton absorbent wadding absorb scientifically—away from the surface—assuring continued softness.

CHILDREN LIVE IN TWO WORLDS, ROTARIANS TOLD

Make-believe, Then Realities Rules Their Actions, Says Alexander

Youngsters live in two worlds—a world of make-believe and a world of realities, Dr. John L. Alexander, director of the American Youth Foundation of St. Louis, Mo., told approximately 150 delegates to the 1931 district rotary conference at the community service sectional conference at First Congregational church, Menasha, Monday afternoon.

Other speakers at the sectional meeting were L. O. Schubart, Neenah, head of the Boys' Brigade movement; Dr. J. M. Mc Claren and Dr. Everett H. Brooks, both of Appleton; Herman Gessner, Escanaba, Mich.; William Zimmer, Wausau; Raymond Fink, Menasha, high school principal; and Albert C. Weber, Shawano. Ray Empson, Gladstone, Mich., was chairman of the session; J. O. Kuehl, Neenah, song leader, and Howard Nussbicker, Appleton, acted as emcees.

Ancestry, school, church, home and companionship are five potent factors which have to do with the molding of a youngster's character, Dr. Alexander pointed out. A boy or girl is judged by the kind of companions he keeps, and the type of home he comes from, he stated.

"Until a boy reaches the age of adolescence, most of his time is devoted to a world of make-believe in which he permits his imagination to rule his expressions," Dr. Alexander said.

"Many youngsters change their decisions on the choice of their vocation many times during one day, one minute desiring they want to be a policeman, and the next minute selecting the heroic fireman as their real ambition."

"The world of realities is taken as a matter of course by most boys until they have reached the age of adolescence and started to give serious thought to their education and future position in their community."

Asks Parents' Sympathy
Declaring that it was natural for youngsters to live most of their early years in a world of dreams or make-believe, Dr. Alexander urged that fathers and mothers be more sympathetic with their children, mindful of the days of their own youth.

"Ancestry is an important factor in the life of a boy or girl," he stated. "If the father is of German heritage and the mother of Irish descent, nationality traits will inevitably appear in the characteristics of the boy or girl."

The speaker declared that America is not the proper country in which to judge the characteristics of youth, where an amalgamation of nationalities is predominant. He stated that this is especially true in the settlement districts of large cities where there are conflicting environments.

"An investigation into the home life of a boy or girl must be made before one can judge the characteristics of the child," he said. "Boys and girls are the product of the home, the home being the starting point of youthful careers."

Study Leisure Moments
"An excellent method of determining the character of a boy is to learn what he does in his leisure moments," the speaker stated. "The home, school, church, and organizations such as the Boy Scouts of America, Boys' Brigade, or Y. M. C. A. all play a part in molding the character of a boy through individual and group supervision, but if the youngster does not make good use of his spare moments, he is bound to submit to temptation sooner or later."

He also stated that youngsters need the experiences of adult leaders who have traveled the "road of hard knocks." He pointed to proper reading programs as a means of helping a boy or girl develop a strong character.

Dr. Alexander declared that the reason why many fathers and mothers complain about the difficulties they experience in disciplining their son or daughter, is because they don't know what discipline is themselves.

Mr. Schubart traced the history of the Boy's Brigade in Neenah, pointing out that the organization was founded Jan. 22, 1899, at the Neenah Presbyterian church by a pastor and a group of eight youngsters, who were determined to create a "boy army," well trained in military tactics.

Brigade Finds Support
They said the primary object of the organization was to advance Christian life and the promotion of good habits in the youth of the city. The brigade program now has the confidence of all but one pastor in the city, Mr. Schubart said.

Dr. Mc Claren and Dr. Brooks outlined the founding of the Appleton orthopedic school for crippled children, and its purposes. They also told about groups in Outagamie county which have played an important part in the development of the institution. Following their talks, Roy Purdy, Appleton showed motion pictures of the school and its activities.

Mr. Gessner, who heads the crippled children program of Rotary clubs in Michigan, completed the discussion on this subject. He urged members of other Rotary clubs to consider the adoption of the crippled children program as a major project of their organization.

Problems of coordinating the community service committee with special committees on specific phases of community service work was the keynote of a short address by Mr. Zimmer. Accomplishments in Inter-city Relations was the topic of an address by Mr. Fink. Mr. Weber spoke on Rural-Urban Acquaintance, pointing out that it is necessary that the business man, industrial executive and farmer be on friendly terms at all times. Group meetings and occasional social functions are good methods of bringing about such relationships, he stated.

Committee Meets
The county board building and grounds committee will meet at the courthouse Wednesday afternoon, according to John E. Hantschel, county clerk. Routine business matters will be transacted.

Milwaukee—(P)—Apparently a victim of starvation, the body of an unidentified recluse lie in the county morgue today. The body was found in a barren shack in the town of Lake. The man was about 60 years old.

Demand to see the Ball and Bottle Test when you buy oil

It proves that New ISO-VIS will not thin out from dilution . . . . .

Proved FACTS about New Iso-Vis

- 1 New Iso-Vis is the only motor oil that will not thin out from dilution.
- 2 New Iso-Vis deposits only half as much carbon as most premium-priced oils.
- 3 New Iso-Vis stands up under heat and lubricates over the complete range of engine temperatures.

In this scientific test, the more body an oil has, the slower the ball drops. Note that used New Iso-Vis (Tube 3) has practically the same body as the fresh oil (Tube 4), while the used "x" oil (Tube 2) has thinned out decidedly.

NO MATTER when you drain, New Iso-Vis will have the same body it had when it was put in. That's safe lubrication. No other motor oil will protect your engine so faithfully—because New Iso-Vis is the only motor oil that will not thin out from dilution.

See the proof of this at any Standard Oil Service Station or dealer with oil from your own car. Get a fill of New Iso-Vis today. At draining time go back and let them show you the Ball and Bottle test with your own used oil. If you accept this challenge, you'll be convinced.

LOOT

The official conduct of executives and law enforcement officials in more than half a hundred American cities is now under investigation, with indictments, trials, appeals and jailings, following one another in rapid order.

Charges of graft, misfeasance and malfeasance cover the country from ocean to ocean, from Canada to Gulf.

From the charges against the district attorney of New York, which ought to be charges against the people themselves for carelessly electing a man at seventy years of age to a position requiring great vigor and strength, to the conviction of the San Diego assessor for embezzling public funds; from a Minneapolis grand jury investigation of police racketeering, to the conviction of Atlanta councilmen and the return of 53 more indictments for graft; from the impeachment of the state treasurer of Missouri for accepting bribes and also misappropriating money to the fraud at Pittsburgh where $1,000,000 has been wasted in three years on paying contracts; from Akron, Ohio; Asheville, North Carolina; Racine, Wisconsin; Boston, Buffalo, St. Paul, Los Angeles, the steady grind keeps on, exposure, trial, conviction, with some exceptions, some getting away, some avoiding detection and so on.

We cannot be proud of such a record. But rushing to the conclusion that this is the age of loot with corruption on a pinnacle, the highest in the history of the country, is neither a sound nor just conclusion.

It is probably correct to say that in no period in our history could we find a page wholly dissimilar.

Francis E. McGovern became governor of Wisconsin because as prosecutor at Milwaukee he seized the opportunity to lay bare and punish for official fraud and corruption those who were thieving from the people.

Joseph W. Folk became governor of Missouri because he acted in the same way as prosecutor at St. Louis.

There are many similar instances showing quick approval by the people of those who fight dishonesty.

The men who defraud seldom get away with the goods, that is the money. Easy come, easy go; dishonestly earned, most of it must be spent for obtaining dishonest protection. For the wages of sin, if not always death, is seldom more than ashes.

Service of time in prison is but part of the punishment. The shame that seldom leaves, and casts its dark shadow upon innocent children too, is a stinging lash in salted wounds.

The forces of evil are constantly alert and on the move.

The forces of law and order grapple with them at every turn in the road and in every walk of life. The outcome in reality paints the history of a race and tells the character of the people as well as the trend upward or downward of their course as a nation.

The great amount of this graft now under the glare of public investigation is not so demoralizing, bad as it is, as would be the conclusion that the public has become indifferent to such scandals, or that the investigation and punishment of offenders has fallen off or become impossible for lack of public support.

The careful student of public conditions will not be so much interested in the amount of graft as in the public reaction to its exposure. When the public becomes apathetic the battle is lost and the government begins to deteriorate. When the public, in righteous anger and indignation, arises to do battle and subdue these forces of evil it shows that the race is still on the upward path, sound, healthful, courageous.

It is no disgrace to a community to have an exposure of public malfeasance. The disgrace is in permitting it without exposure.

HUMANIZING THE PRESIDENT

National Republican leaders have started a definite campaign to make Mr. Hoover a popular figure for the 1932 election by centralizing and broadcasting those things or qualities about him that may seem homey or have about them a touch of the element called human.

This is a procedure that has some risk. It may, if overdone by the too zealous, tend to place the president in a role for which he is personally unsuited, and therefore render him rather ludicrous, although if it carefully limits itself to the truth, very carefully, and deals with facts alone, shunning the temptation of trying to build a popular idol, it may do no harm but it is doubtful too whether it will accomplish any good.

All of our presidents have been respected by the people, but only about once in a generation do we have one with great popular appeal. We have had none such since Theodore Roosevelt quit office twenty-two years ago. A president may, by choice of issues, select his own political enemies and the selection may rebound to his benefit. But the choice of friends is a dangerous one, for friends in an effort to help or demonstrate their friendship, so often go beyond the bounds of truth or propriety and the reaction is against the one least responsible, the chief.

Painting Mr. Hoover as an entirely honest, stubborn to the point of mulishness, quiet, plodding, persistent and earnest man—which is a true picture of him—will do him more good than by obtaining the services of some expert word painter to try and make him what he isn't.

Many a picture is ruined by a too free use of paint.

THE COMING WHEAT HARVEST

Regardless of the efforts of the Farm Board to induce the farmers of the country to curtail their wheat crops this year, the government estimates that the winter crop will be greater than ever.

It is difficult for farmers to get away from the habit of planting the same crops year after year. Mere suggestion on the part of any organization like the Farm Board, or even a cooperative directorate, will not curtail the size of a crop. When prices are low the farmer is tempted to plant more acreage in order to make ends meet. The law of supply and demand does not work except as a last resort by driving farmers from the farms.

The farmer, being a strict individualist, decides to let the other fellow do the curtailing. If he does, he is afraid the other will not. Anyway, each feels that what he does won't make much difference. So he hopes the rest of the farmers will curtail while he plants as much or more and expects to take advantage of the situation.

It is too bad that the only force which will curtail a crop is to drive the farmers from the land through inability to earn a living, a most unpleasant system.

This is neither Italy nor Russia, and no one with whip or gun is authorized to direct farmers or others in the management and control of their property. But it is enlightened America, and the farmers are intelligent men and know full well that if wheat acreage were cut 25 per cent this year the price of that raised would much more than compensate them for the cut, besides tending materially to bring the industry of farming back to the old position where it belongs as "the backbone of the nation."

Wheat should be selling at twice its present price but how can this ever be expected with a surplus annually of 200,000,000 bushels?

Opinions Of Others

"BELL-YACHING"
"Arkansas has been standing a beggar before the world, a Lazarus at the gate asking help of others, and our leaders admitting that we could not take of ourselves. It is not a very good picture for a self-respecting Arkansas to hold. That impression has gone out and, whether true or not, Arkansas will thus be pictured.
"Now, folks, it's time to face about. We have been hit, but we have probably hauled just a little louder than we have been hurt.
"Heaven forbid that the time will ever come again when Arkansas farmers will have to ask the people of the nation to contribute so that they may be fed.
"Many of you fellows are not to blame for the (one crop) system that has been fastened upon you. Few of you are in any way responsible for the financial debacle which tied up our credit and prevented those who might have helped themselves from doing it.
"But, by all that is high and holy, we can swear as citizens to change that system and change those conditions so the future will not find a repetition of it.
"Let's quit belly-aching. Let's take this lesson to heart and build more soundly for the future."
The Arkansas Farmer.

THOUGHTS about the depression . . . Uncle Art tells us of the fellow from New York advertising agency who observes that this area does more howling about the depression and has less reason for it than any other part of the United States . . . nice bunch of people we've got . . . despite the depression, 10,000,000 people paid $10,000,000 to hear concerts last year . . .

This must be national statistics day. A fellow, in fact a scientific-minded fellow, says that there are 65,000,000,000,000,000 possible shots on a billiard table.

Well, perhaps, but if he hasn't seen a flock of average golfers playing an average game of Sunday morning golf, he hasn't any idea of how many possible shots there really are in other kinds of athletics.

And another fellow says that the world will be run down in about a million million years. By that time the depression and the dump will be taken care of.

"In the land of the free-e, and the ho-ome of the brave"

Quotations from a recent news story: " . . . wife paid $10,000 ransom to kidnappers . . . wife frantically converting securities and jewels to cash . . . borrowing money . . . mortgaging the home . . . three different gangs had been shadowing him for weeks . . . he deduced they were affiliated with a national organization which makes a business of kidnapping wealthy men for ransom . . ."

Yes, Yes, and How?
Dr. F. Scott McBride has announced that Wisconsin will pass a new dry law. Will Mr. McBride please tell us when?

Queer sensations—a sunburned face and neck exposed to a darned chilly evening.

The United States army is rapidly replacing horses with automobiles and probably the horses will be having a convention pretty soon and yelling about the employment situation. S'getting so a good horse can't get a job anywhere.

Have you voted as to whether you do or do not want Hottense, the literary-minded-house-dog, to come back? Send in your ballots, the wishes of the people must be heeded.

And then there was the true incident of the jeweler who sold a trophy to a golf tournament committee, was invited to play in the tournament, borrowed a set of clubs, was given a handicap and won the darned cup back.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

THE PUZZLE OF LIFE
Grant me, O Lord, the strength to do
The tasks the morning brings me to,
But as I walk from dawn to night
Keeping the distant goal in sight
Let me not blindly hurry by
The lesser joys which may be nigh.

Things seem important here on earth,
But let me rightly judge their worth,
Perhaps 'twere better not to gain
The ends I struggle to attain,
And quit the hills I would ascend
To step aside and play the friend.

Teach me to reckon time by more
Than gold and silver struggled for,
Swiftly the hours go by. The thought
Persists that hasten on I ought,
And yet perhaps the greater deed
May be to serve another's need.

Lord, as I walk Thy people's way
So many duties crowd the day,
So many simple tasks and small
For strength and precious moments call,
I wonder am I wise when I
Some friendly service hurry by?

Lord, make me wise enough to know
The worth-while labors here below;
Are the far goals I hope to gain
Worth all the selfishness and pain,
Or does true greatness really lie
In friendship and the tasks near by?

Looking Backward

TEN YEARS AGO
Tuesday, May 3, 1921

Strikes and lockouts were costing workers nearly $1,000,000 daily in wages lost, it was estimated in Washington, D. C., that day.

Miss Ruth Sackner, 726 Union-st., was elected president of the L. B. club at the annual meeting the previous day at First Methodist church.

Applications for marriage licenses were made that day by Joseph A. Wetengel and Ida E. McNella, Appleton; Michael H. Kettenhofen and Catherine M. Stulp, Appleton.

Miss Elma Kottke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kottke, 951 Drev-st., and Arthur Lipke, son of Mrs. William Lipke, Peshtigo, were to be married the following day at St. Paul church.

Miss Mary Schreiner had returned from a month's visit at New Heinsten.

Miss Muriel Kelley was home from Milwaukee for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. John Myron and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Greenwood were guests of Green Bay friends the previous Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Schreiner were in Chicago on a several days' visit.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

HAS ANYBODY SEEN A CAPILLARY?
Alice is puzzled. She writes:
Some time ago you stated in one of your articles that the theory of capillaries was unscientific. In mentioning this to some students, they did not seem to know anything about this. Will you kindly let me know who is the authority for your statement? My friends claim that the microscope reveals the existence of capillaries as you can see the blood flowing thru them.

Well, my dear Alice, your friends may have a much better microscope than mine. Mine is just an ordinary optical scope with the usual assortment of eye pieces and a simple revolving nozzle or business end, so that you can change from low power to medium and finally to high power oil-immersion with a twist of the wrist. You can see the blood corpuscles, sinking thru the capillaries, in a photograph, or web, and you can see divers and sundry microbes with my scope, but you can't see the capillaries, for the reason that no such vessels exist.

By the way, I'm sick and tired of using my scope, because every time I find a drop in the nose, I have discovered long before, so what's the use? I'll gladly give it to the first deserving medical student that needs one.

In the old time books one finds drawings of capillary vessels, to be sure. No one, however, has ever even demonstrated an isolated capillary vessel, however.

Capillaries are hypothetical vessels or tubes. In reality they are merely spaces between the connective tissue cells, clear away the connective tissue cells around the capillaries and you have precisely nothing left.

Thru these spaces or channels between the connective tissue cells which bind and support the functioning tissues of the body, the blood carries its water cells around the capillaries and you have precisely nothing left.

This term "capillary" is commonly applied to the arteriole or venule, which is a very small artery or vein, a distinct tube which may be isolated and photographed or observed under the microscope.

But it is really a mistake to imagine you have seen a capillary, for all you can see is the space where you imagine the capillary must be. Capillary "vessels" are ghost vessels.

Another young reader, named Colleen, is exercised about sweating, while in itself is remarkable. She writes:

In my class in health in high school we had an argument as to whether a person would sweat more on a cold cloudy day than on a hot day. The teacher said that a person would sweat more on a cloudy day. Is it true? Please do not print.

Never mind, Colleen, we'll call it "perspiration" and then no one can object to mentioning it in public.

I suggest that you ask teacher if the children can't play marbles or tidbits in the school yard. I can't see what the amount of perspiration has to do with health. Generally the quantity excreted is greater in warm weather or on a warm day or in a warm place than it is in cool weather or on a cold day or in a cold place. When the air is dry perspiration evaporates more quickly and so you are less conscious of your sweating. Then the motion of the air is an important factor, for the more wind or breeze that freer will be evaporation.

When I try to teach my terrier Tony the Welsh anything I am reminded of the plight of the teacher who is assigned to teach the physiology, hygiene or health class in school. Before you can teach the dog you have to know more than he does.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
It Sounds Like Something Scientific.
One doctor advises a change of climate for my trouble, a very grave trouble which has existed over a period of years and has undermined my health. Another believes he can effect a cure with the Abrams electronic method. What can you say for this method, which I understand is a kind of radio electric vibration . . . (P. L. M.)

Answer.—The Scientific American and other authorities have exposed the so-called "electronic reactions of Abrams" as a humbug. No reputable physician pretends he can diagnose or treat disease in that way.

I am 45 years old and have never smoked. I have diabetes. My physician suggests that I take up smoking. He does not know whether it will help me, but he says no diabetes patient he has ever treated used tobacco, and Diabetes and Diabetes.

Answer.—It is a novel and interesting idea. I have no data concerning the use of tobacco by diabetics. Perhaps some of our readers can tell us if there is anything in the idea.

Drops in the Nose.
Early in March you published a note from a nose and throat specialist advising mothers not to use drops in the nose of a child, as this practice, in the specialist's opinion, had produced mastoiditis in some cases. We use drops in the nose, prescribed by a prominent child specialist, for our son aged 5 years. The child specialist claims that the drops keep the nose and throat clear and free from the possibility of developing mastoiditis. Your article is in direct contradiction to this. (M. B. H.)

Answer.—In such a controversy the child specialist must yield to the throat specialist. Of course either of them may be quite wrong. I should do as my family physician advises. Chronic Appendicitis.

The doctor tells me I have a chronic appendicitis and he advises that I have an operation for a cystocele which I have had since my third child was born, and at the same time have the appendix out. (Mrs. M. J. K.)

Answer.—The diagnosis of chronic appendicitis is a matter of the doctor's opinion. Whether you undergo the operation or not depends on your faith in your doctor.

er states have fast adopted dairying

share of our products, and we should do everything in our power to protect our own interests.

In this day of agricultural distress it is very easy for disgruntled individuals or ambitious politicians to assume the attitude of the martyr or the role of "dictator by law," without giving serious consideration to the ultimate result of hasty or arbitrary laws enacted at the request of individuals who are not anxious to develop outside markets.

A bill known as the Milk Inspection bill No. 248-S, has been introduced in our state senate placing inspection of dairy products under state license, with at least partial state control. This bill was killed two years ago, and will come up for hearing again May 14, 1931, at 2 p. m. in the production hearing room, state senate.

This bill is of vital importance to all farmers supplying milk for sale in outside markets, and you have a responsibility in demanding that this bill is not passed. Farmers who do not wish to meet inspection requirements are not prevented from selling milk elsewhere, but if Wisconsin is to hold its prestige as a dairy state, inspection should be enforced on every farm, and the standards of quality be improved on every commodity. If we are providing a commodity that we will not allow the purchaser to inspect, then we must expect our markets to pass in to other territories.

Madison, Wis., May 4, 1931.

For Regulated Production

Editor Post-Crescent.—Will the eight hour day law assist the employment situation to any great extent? Providing this law goes into effect the manufacturers will speed up production, thereby producing in eight hours that which formerly was produced in nine or ten. The only great advantage will be the payment of time and one-half for overtime. What this situation demands to overcome the present unemployment situation is a regulated production, and mass production. As long as this the production continues to be in a state of unemployment will be at a maximum.

What the average workman wants is not a job that will continue for a few months under mass production but a regular production job that will keep him employed 12 months per year. The writer has spent several years working in production factories and understands the labor situation provided by mass production. Why not a regulated production law providing a consistent job? Under these conditions more men would be in demand helping the present unemployment situation and to prevent a similar condition in the future.

Liquor in Apartments

Editor Post-Crescent.—In answer to Peoples Forum of May 1st in regard to liveable apartments wish to say that when a landlord rents a well furnished apartment at a reasonable price and the tenants use the apartment as a roadhouse with liquor plenty and other shameful and disgusting scenes then rent at the highest price is cheap.

Here is one landlord who does not appreciate having his home used for liquor parties.

Milk Inspection

Editor Post-Crescent.—The state of Wisconsin is primarily a dairy state depending on outside markets to absorb a large per cent of our dairy products. We produce about 60 per cent of the nation's cheese, 80 per cent of the nation's butter, 85 per cent of the condensed milk, and a large quantity of the fluid milk, ice cream and city cream that is sold in many markets all over the United States. Wisconsin is in a strategic position as a dairy state, with its enlightened and progressive dairymen as an asset.

In 1926 Dr. Bundeson of the Chicago board of health issued an ultimatum that on May 1st no milk could be sold in the city of Chicago unless produced from cows that had passed the tuberculin test. Neighboring states refused to accept this ultimatum, but the Wisconsin farmer, ever alert and willing to accept progressive ideas rallied to the call and met the demands of a city anxious to protect its health.

The city of Chicago had no milk market moved into new areas and the City of Chicago did not miss a delivery of safe milk meeting requirements. With this spirit of co-operation, a new field for Wisconsin milk was opened and our market broadened. With the tuberculin test came, also, inspection. An educational program requiring farmers to use added care and sanitation in the handling of this most necessary food.

City consumers have realized for many years that a safe supply of milk is just as essential for safeguarding the health of its inhabitants as is a sewerage system properly regulated and controlled.

The city consumer has not only demanded protection but is and always has been willing to pay liberally for this protection.

Wisconsin sells to the Chicago market alone approximately 3,000,000 of milk or its equivalent daily for consumption in this great city, and the producers receive 60c, and not 75c per cwt. over butter and cheese price, if used for fluid milk, and from 4c to 12c more per pound for city cream and ice cream mix. Do these 30,000 farmers want this market jeopardized? The answer should be decidedly no.

To state that any one cannot get along without milk produced in Wisconsin is an absolute fallacy. Other

Today's Anniversary

On May 5, 1917, the French gained another brilliant victory on the front north of the river Aisne against the Chemin des Dames, and successfully achieved the objects they had in view.

Commenting on this triumph, General Sir Douglas Haig, English commander, reported:

The decisive action which it had been hoped might be achieved in the French offensive had not yet proved capable of realization; but the magnitude of the results actually achieved strengthened our belief in its ultimate possibility.

On the British front alone, in less than one month's fighting, we had captured over 10,500 prisoners, including over 400 officers, and had also taken 257 guns, including 93 heavy guns . . . and immense quantities of other war material. Our line had been advanced to a greatest depth exceeding five miles on a total front of over 20 miles, representing a gain of some 60 square miles of territory."

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

THE grocery man passed out of sight and then wee Clowny Tinymite cried, "Oh, let's run and catch him. He had carrots by the score. I've heard that they are good for you. If we each eat one or two, I know that they will do us just fine. I could eat ever more."

"All right," replied the Travel Man. And down the roadway Clowny ran. He caught up with the grocery man and exclaimed, "We've had a bunch to buy some of your carrots. Gee, they surely look real good to me." Then Clowny gave the man some coins and took a great big bunch.

When he returned back to the rest the Travel Man said, "Well, I'm blest! You got what you went after. Now we'll enjoy a treat." So Clowny passed the carrots round and shortly everybody said that they were very tasty, being nice and fresh and sweet.

Soon after that the Travel Man exclaimed, "I think you Tinymites can have lots of fun by putting on some Chinese costumes. We can go right to a store nearby and rent them. Shall we have a try?"

"You bet!" replied one Tiny. "I'll be funny as can be."

Into the store they promptly went and "bout a half an hour was spent in changing from their own nice clothes to costumes, colored bright. Poor Clowny proved a fussy lad. Said he, "I surely will be glad if I can pick a suit out that I'm sure fits me just right."

The costume man just blinked his eyes and said, "Here, son, is one your size." And he was right. It fit just fine. And now they all were dressed. As down they street they walked along they

PROPOSALS TO BOOST TAXES IN SPOTLIGHT

Action Will Have to Be Taken by Next Congress; Authorities Agree

BY JOHN F. MILLER
Copyright 1931, By Cons. Press
Washington—(CPA)—A gift tax, higher inheritance taxes, and a rise in surtaxes on those having large incomes, sums up the proposals so far made to take care of the tax increases which most authorities agree will have to be made by the next congress.

Tax experts predict that of these proposals the return of the gift tax, abolished several years ago, is the one that will be fought most bitterly.

Under a recent court decision the government was prevented from collecting an estate tax on gifts of more than $36,000 made by John Wanamaker less than two years prior to his death, and Chief Justice Hughes, in the opinion, indicated quite clearly that unless the government can show such transfers are made with the specific motive of defeating the law, they will not be held taxable by the supreme court.

The gifts referred to were made before 1926. In that year the law was changed to provide that all transfers made less than two years prior to death shall be taxable—in other words, such gifts will be presumed to have been made in contemplation of death regardless of the actual facts.

Law Held Arbitrary
That law, however, has just been held arbitrary and invalid by two federal district courts, and according to tax attorneys these decisions are likely to be affirmed by the supreme court.

There is only one way to take care of the situation, many members of congress believe, and that is to impose a tax on all gifts, no matter when made. Millions of dollars have been lost to the government, they contend, because of transfers consummated for the express purpose of avoiding death taxes. John D. Rockefeller and Henry Ford are said to have disposed of a large part of their vast holdings through gifts.

Great Britain collects more than $300,000,000 annually in death taxes, and since America's national wealth is four times as great, we should be able to make such a tax yield more than a billion dollars a year, it is claimed.

On the other hand, say opponents of the gift tax, we are now spending one-seventh of the national income to support federal, state and local governments, and the proposed levy is simply another scheme to add to that burden.

If higher taxes are necessary, many levies that are sounder economically than the gift tax are available, they assert, pointing out that a tax does not usually start where it is put, and that the shifting process is just as detrimental to business as if the tax were a direct burden. The situation in Great Britain and other European countries, with taxes that paralyze capital, is just the thing that we want to avoid, they say.

"Rudy" is the name everyone calls Rudolph King, errand boy at the Post-Crescent. This happy-go-lucky smile is one of his characteristics, always there with a cheerful, "hello", right behind it.

Rudy came to the Post-Crescent in 1928 for his first job. He has lived in Appleton all his life and attended grade school here. Rudy's job is to take advertising proofs to the stores in the city and collect them, supply the linotypes with fresh metal every night, and run errands in general.

He learned to run a linotype about a year ago by practicing after working hours. Since Rudy wants to learn more and work up into the trade he spends about two hours every afternoon running a machine, setting up material for the next day's run.

Rudy likes to swim so well that he was one of the first fellows in the canal, braving the cold April winds and the stinging cold water. He enjoys dancing as much as swimming, which indicates that he is a busy young man when his work is done. Rudy lives at 1319 S. Lawrence.

Trout Usually Downstream In Early Part Of Season

BY B. A. CLAFLIN

There is something about early trout fishing that is particularly appealing to anglers. Whether it is because of the fact that the long months of waiting have given us an urge that demands relief, or because as a rule larger fish can be taken at the start of the season, it is difficult to say. It is a fact, however, that more enthusiasm is apparent right now than will be shown as the season advances.

It is a distinct pleasure to be out on the stream in early May when all nature is waking up; when the buds are bursting forth; when migrating birds are singing all about the man on the stream; when nature is all astir for a glad season for which we have waited so long.

In the early part of the trout season the fish are usually well downstream. They begin at once to work upwards. Their ultimate destination is the cold springs where spawning takes place—in November for the Speckled trout, and March for the Rainbows. Many anglers, not well versed perhaps in the ways of the trout, seek the upper waters for their early season fishing. The experienced angler, however, hits the stream well down in the water and deeper stretches. And he gets the fish, because it is there they are busy feeding.

Contrary to the expressions of different trout fishermen who write their views to the effect that poor results will be obtained this year on account of the low stage of water prevailing, I am of the belief that we shall enjoy fully as good, if not indeed better sport than other years afforded when the water was abnormally high. The fish will be easier to locate. They will be found in the deep pools wherever such spots in the stream exist.

Likes Red River
A very good stream for early trout fishing is the Red river. You can begin fishing it at the village of Philo, which is about three miles above the northern boundary of the Menominee reservation on highway 47. The nearer the village you fish the smaller your fish will be. But farther downstream some fine specimens can be taken.

Another stream that is well worth your attention is the Thunder river, in Marinette-co. The main Thunder will, I believe, afford you best results. A good place to hit it is about a mile above Three Falls. Wet flies are most effective early in the season before the natural flies and other insects have made their appearance on the surface of the water. From the spot I have mentioned you can wade down, as you will in using wet flies, and by the time you have arrived at Three Falls, if you are a careful angler you should have a few very good fish, enough for any fairminded fisherman.

Later on, as warm weather comes on, the north and south branch will be better, for the fish will have left the main river to a large extent in their travel upward toward colder water. And it is then that dry fly fishing is best to do.

The Thunder river can be reached by driving to Crivitz and from there west for about ten miles, where you will come to the main stream.

During the recent development of a East Texas oil field the population of Longview tripled in three weeks.

IS YOUR HOME READY FOR SPRING?

The magic of spring is treating all outdoors to new color schemes! Drab winter grays are giving place to the gold of daffodils... the violet of hyacinths... the gay, audacious red of tulips... the fresh, living green of bursting boughs and emerald lawns. What place has a dull tired looking home in such a setting? Every room fairly cries out for a cherry new dress, to match the landscape... or bring the charm of the country spring into your city home.

There are lovely new chintzes that will transform them... New color schemes are waiting to show your home what they can do. And not in years has there been a time when decorative magic can be wrought so inexpensively.

Let us tell you how little it will take to bring your home into harmony with the new Spring season. That this expert advice will cost no more than if the furnishings were selected without the decorator's help is not always understood; the decorator operates as any store or dealer in merchandise in selling you fabrics and furnishings.

WOOD MILLS APT TO LOSE RATE BATTLE

Examiner Opposes Decrease on Cost of Shipments in Middle-west

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—A number of Wisconsin manufacturers of building woodwork will lose their fight for lower freight rates on shipments to the middle-west and equality with Pacific Coast competitors, if the Interstate Commerce Commission accepts the report proposed by Examiner Alfred G. Hagerty, despite Hagerty's admission that "a discriminatory concession is available to Pacific Coast shippers when tested by the rate adjustment from the Wisconsin mills."

Hagerty's argument seems to be, however, that there isn't enough discrimination—technically, of course, to come within the I. C. C.'s definition of undue preference.

The Wisconsin mills located at Oshkosh, Neenah, Fond du Lac, Wausau and Merrill were joined by Iowa and Illinois mills along the Mississippi river, in their complaint. It is a double complaint, charging, first, that the rates on building woodwork particularly sash, doors and blinds, from Wisconsin and the other complaining mills to middle western territory are unreasonable, and, second, that rates accorded Pacific Coast competitors to the same destination territory are discriminatory and preferential to the West Coast concerns.

The above deal is one of those which often cause good players to regret that they have not bid for a Slam at Contract.

In spite of the result a Slam bid on the combined hands of East and West would not be sound. In fact one must have very good technique in order to make the Slam even though there is such a favorable distribution of the cards. At No Trump the King and but one other Club must be found in South's hand and even then a squeeze play must be resorted to.

At Clubs the Slam is somewhat easier due to ability to ruff the Diamonds, but even in this case the Club situation must be what it is, or else an opportunity presented for the squeeze play.

She thinks it is the Chocolate flavor that makes her love her milk when mother puts in two teaspoonsful of Thompson's "Double Malted." But her appetite is really due to the double amount of malt enzymes in "Double Malted" which help digest milk and other foods.

Perfect digestion is vital to children; they must eat and digest more than grown folks in order to grow. Thompson's "Double Malted" digests five times its own weight of starchy foods. This helps young, growing bodies to get full benefit from the food they eat. Then they eat more—hence gain in height, weight, energy. Thompson's practically doubles the food value of milk—rich in food elements that develop strong bones, teeth, firm flesh, sturdy muscles.

Resolve that your boy or girl shall have the tremendous advantage in life that a vigorous body gives. Order Thompson's "Double Malted" from your druggist or grocer now.

Teach Child Proper Use Of Speech

BY ANGELO PATRI

I am all for clean speech. The right word in the exact place it belongs. Clean speech that says precisely what is meant. Say it plainly, beautifully, directly. Speech is the gesture that throws one's innermost dwelling place wide open to a curious world. Let your voice be heard and you no longer have a secret. The world knows you, places you accurately from that day.

Short words, those that have been used for so many centuries that they have become crystals polished by the stream of language that has passed over man's long trail since the first days, are best. The old-fashioned words like man, boy, mother, me, eat and sleep and sweat are like old landmarks, precious to all who follow through the long tale of the years.

I have small patience with those who coin substitutes for such clear expressions as murder, stealing, loving, and dying. So close is the manner of speech to the spirit of the man that the use of such terms brands him as one with something to hide, with something unpleasant to name on his conscience. The downright, forthright man names names and stands upon his word for it is the good word, and the right word.

Words seem trifling things to quarrel about until you remember their deep meaning. In the beginning it was the Word. How often the beginnings of things are but words. Repeat the words often enough, mull them over long enough, and they become alive. They are clothed with flesh; they live. Choose words well, then, lest they create what you do not care to have live.

Nowadays slang from the streets, the places of the mistakes and the misguides, seeps into our language. Clean-faced children use terms that are mixed, terms that make thoughtful people wince, as blithely as they would relate their A B C's. It is not good. I hold with the old teacher who used to warn his pupils, "Never use the word hate. It distorts the face of him who uses it. It warps his tongue and it darkens his mind."

The schools and the homes should be a bit more careful of the words the children use. Set a standard of clean language; avoid the words that come from the underworld's activities; avoid using sacred terms irreverently; avoid exaggeration and bad taste in everyday speech.

Teach a child to use the right word. When he wants to say "I am hungry," let him say so and should he inform you that "It's time for the eat," correct him. When he says "The guy is a lollipop," have him translate. When he swears his thumb and calls upon God and the malevolent angels, caution him to keep his words in proportion to the situation they express. There is something of abysmal ignorance in calling upon God, or the Devil, to soothe a frustrated temper, or a smarting thumb. There is something short of cosmic interest.

Teach a child to talk clearly, using short words, with directness and truth. Speech is the gesture with which we introduce ourselves to a gaping world. Surely it is better to appear at one's best.

Community Building Is Goal Of Woman's Club

A COMMUNITY building containing a lecture room, a suitable place for health clinics, and a swimming pool and recreation room were mentioned as goals for Appleton Woman's club to aim at, in the annual message of Mrs. Edgar V. Werner, president, at the annual meeting and luncheon last week at Conway hotel. She asked for the club's cooperation of the club with the rural members who are in need of a place large enough for their achievement day programs.

In speaking of work yet to be done by the club, Mrs. Werner mentioned the work of the clinic in finding young folks in ill health and in seeing that they receive proper treatment to bring them back to health. As suggestions for the coming year she mentioned a course in Art Appreciation which would enable the women to make their homes and dress more attractive, our state, and origin and geology of our state, and lessons in child psychology which would help in the care and upbringing of children. With a well-planned monthly program along these and other lines, Mrs. Werner expressed the opinion that the club would be the work of every member. She suggested using material and talent at hand, thus keeping down expenses.

The members decided to entertain the four actives who will be graduated this year at a luncheon at Stein's tea room, Oshkosh, May 16. An invitation was received from the Kappa chapter, Madison, to attend the alumnae state meeting next Saturday at Madison. A luncheon will be served at the Memorial Union building and there will be a program during the afternoon. It is expected that one of the five living founders and a representative of the national council will be present. About 13 actives and Miss Anna Tarr will go from Appleton.

Your FLOWER GARDEN

BY D. VICTOR LUMSDEN

Climbing vines are most valuable to soften the hard, straight lines of buildings. Spring is the ideal time to plant them to protect a porch, to cover a masonry wall or to grow on a trellis or pergola.

For brick and stone the Japanese ivy, frequently called Boston ivy, and closely related types make a splendid green covering. These vines are not evergreen. Their leaves turn red and drop each fall only to put out new leaves of a beautiful green hue the following spring.

A vine for masonry walls, which has the virtue of being evergreen, is the English ivy. Unfortunately this vine is not hardy north of New York, but to the south this plant makes a beautiful, dark green wall cover. It does not grow as rapidly as the Japanese ivy but when once established its beauty is unexcelled. It is this vine which is seen growing widely in George Washington's garden at Mt. Vernon, Va.

The Wintercreeper

The wintercreeper is used farther north where English ivy is not hardy. It can not, however, take the place of the ivy for the wintercreeper is a low growing plant, seldom growing more than six to eight feet high. It is evergreen with a growth habit which causes it to pile up and climb from the soil where it is planted. The leaves are smaller than those of the English ivy but they have the same attractive green color.

For covering an arbor, pergola or trellis such vines as wisteria, trumpetreeper, bittersweet, climbing roses, Japanese honeysuckle, clematis or kudzu-bean may be used.

Foliage of the wisteria and trumpetreeper have the same general appearance but the former is alternately branched while the latter has opposite branching.

The flowers of these two vines, however, are distinctly unlike. The wisteria has drooping clusters of small pea-like flowers in colors from white to purple while the trumpetreeper bears clusters of trumpet-shaped bright orange blossoms.

Bittersweet as a Vine

The bittersweet is now widely known because of the popularity of its fruit for winter decoration. Comparatively few, however, know it for the handsome foliage that it bears during the summer.

This vine will grow best in partial shade. It climbs by twining and is a vigorous grower which under good

FIFTY-FIRST WEDDING DAY IS OBSERVED

Mr. and Mrs. Antone Rechner celebrated their fifty-first wedding anniversary at their home at 408 W. Eighth-st. Sunday. Thirty-five relatives were guests at a dinner in the evening.

Among the out of town guests were two daughters who were unable to attend the golden wedding celebration held last year, Sister M. Theophane, stationed at St. Clara orphanage, Denver, Colo., and Sister M. Adelaide, from Sacred Heart orphanage, Pueblo, Calif. Others from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Mark F. Pfaffler and family, Anthony Rechner and Miss Lillian Adams, Milwaukee, and Mrs. T. E. Coate, Davenport, Ia.

conditions will reach a height of 25 feet.

Climbing roses make a beautiful sight when in flower and trained over a pergola or arch in a garden. There are kinds which will grow to 15 feet and others will grow only half as high.

They are obtainable in many varieties which bear flowers from white to deep red. For best results they need a sunny location and good air circulation.

Japanese honeysuckle and the various kinds of clematis make agreeable vines for growing on a coarse mesh chicken wire. They grow rapidly and form a dense screen. The former suffers from severe winter in northern states and the latter die down to the ground each year.

The kudzu-bean is also a herbaceous perennial but is a far more vigorous grower than the clematis. A single vine will frequently cover an area of 300 square feet in one season.

UPSTAIRS, Sarah had noticed the interest which Miles Roberts had developed in Joan. She had smiled idly. Miles had a fetish for pretty faces. New faces. Like a small girl collecting paper dolls.

Ted was watching Joan. He wanted to see just how she responded to Miles' attention. Sarah understood his nervous glances.

"He's watching just as anyone watches a possession. He's not half so much in love with her as he thinks he is....or else he's more. My intuition failed me a good many times. That priceless armor which we women are supposed to wear isn't always bullet-proof. I don't.....know....."

She was standing near a heavy old door, her red skirts brushed out on both sides of her, her breasts falling rapidly under the shining sheen of the silk. Someone came up to her and she smiled. There were lots of men in the world.... plenty of men at her party. Good looking men, interesting men, whose eyes and words both told her that they liked her. Life wasn't half bad. Unless, of course, a girl was fool enough to insist on sticking to a man who couldn't have seen her portrait in the family album.

The man drifted away and another came. And while she stood against the heavy oak door with her red skirts making a gleaming pattern, Ted came, too.

Joan, so Sarah noticed now, was much too interested in Miles' chivalrous flattery. Miles seemed to be outdoing himself a little, too.

"I was just going down to see about the ices," Sarah told Ted, and wondered why she said it. She had no intention of seeing about ices or cakes or anything else. "They'll keep," he answered. "Come on over to the seat around the corner and talk to me."

"But I'm not in a conversational mood. I'd rather dance. And I may never have a chance at the ballroom again." She laughed lightly and looked away. So Ted had decided that he would make Joan jealous by being kind to her? Well, he needn't bother. Every girl could understand what a man was doing when he took that method of getting even. But no man ever understood what a girl was doing.

"You aren't like yourself tonight," Ted said and his voice was puzzled but she only smiled provocatively, aware that her lips were very red and her eyes were starry bright. "Last night you liked me, but tonight you think I'm as interesting as a catnap for breakfast."

But Sarah went on smiling. "I read a little poem the other day. It's the way I feel. Want to hear it?" Her voice was a little laughing as she began.

"Yesterday I loved you,
Loved you far too much,
But tonight I draw away
From your lightest touch."

Yesterday my love was real,
But tonight I fake it,
Don't complain, you had your chance,
And you wouldn't take it!" Then she slipped through the oaken door, knowing that his face was still curiously puzzled.

"But he'll think now. He'll wonder what I'm talking about and when you get a man to wondering about you.... when you have him guessing.... that's something! But if he only knew how little I feel like that poem." She wasn't surprised when he followed her.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

Puzzled: Women have a strange way, sometimes, of showing their affection but your affinity seems to be employing newer and stranger methods than any. I've seen you go up and definitely, urging you to find someone else to love, then, after a certain amount of time, she perhaps begins to think better of her decision, and instead of recalling you, seeks to arouse your jealousy with a rather ugly-colored story about a secret marriage. After having concocted this story which stretches credulity to the breaking point, she sends messages to you urging you to return to her. Naturally let a mere male, who isn't accustomed to being won even the most normal vagaries of women, you are a little bit upset over these tactics.

The only possible advice to give you under these trying circumstances is to lie low and wait. If you move in any direction, you'll manage to do just the wrong thing. Better let this talented fiction writer begin the next chapter for you. Since she is determined to be elaborate and mysterious in her maneuvers, you can't hope to understand her.

But rest assured if she really wants you back, she'll find some simple way of conveying the information to you. It rests with her. You've been dismissed, and for all you know, you're still dismissed. If she loves you, and wants to tell you that she's sorry for what she's done, I think she'll get down to brass tacks and think up a less subtle way of doing it.

Discouraged Mother: Unless you are prepared to leave your husband, there is nothing you can do but to give up seeing the other man entirely. Life has treated you hardly but if you don't want to make it even more difficult for yourself than it already is, you had better end your only hope of romance, by insisting that the romantic factor be eliminated. In time, if you sternly resist in doing this, your husband and his talkative friend will have forgotten an episode which caused you so much trouble. But if you go on hoping and planning, and occasionally seeing the man you love, you'll keep this trouble uppermost in the mind of your husband and make life unbearable for yourself. It's rather late in the day for you to try to make your life all over. You two would find it difficult to make a go of things, since you have obligations and associations which bind you irrevocably to the lives you are now leading apart from each other.

Aim for peace and harmony now. Don't chase the will-o'-wisp of romance at this time of your life. You have managed to live thus far in comparative comfort and it would be folly to seek a new happiness under the present circumstances.

GERARD: In your effort to establish a new personality for yourself, don't go about with such a belligerent attitude, that you lose all your old friends. You don't need to be a bully in order to show strength, and you needn't make a point of starting a quarrel on the slightest pretext, just to prove that you're no weakling.

If you've been too much in the habit of giving in to other people, learn to assert yourself quietly. But don't bluster your way to success. You will arouse ridicule where you aroused only pity before.

The trouble is you're trying to change too quickly. Go at it more slowly and you'll make fewer mistakes. You can't become a new man over night, but you can gradually be more of a person by knowing when to stick up for your own rights, and how to do it, in a restrained dignified manner.

FEW MINUTES NIGHTLY KEEPS HANDS LOVELY

BY ALICIA HAF

Spring care of hands is an important factor in summer beauty. Too little is said about the appeal of lovely hands, the arresting beauty of graceful, well-kept hands, artistic, capable hands that know how to do things, and especially how to take care of themselves!

Night and morning care of hands is absolutely necessary, if you want smooth, velvety and white hands. But also it is necessary to give them a thought or two during the day.

If you will notice it, your hands look much better for holding them aloft. The veins sink back, the blood seems to drain from them somewhat, and they take on a wax like beauty. Well, why not hold them aloft then, once in a while during the day when you happen to think of it. You rest your feet by sitting down, you rest your body by lying prone, you can rest your hands by propping your elbows up and leaning your hands against your head or the back of the chair.

If you do your housework, keep bleaching near by. Lemon is excellent. Rub a piece of lemon over your hands every time you touch vegetables or do rough work. But don't stop at the bleaching. Use a cream, too.

Nights and mornings massage your hands, with one of the new hand creams. They are nourishing and they tend to supply the fat that many hands need. Many of them have a bleaching quality as well. They are obtainable at most drug stores and practically all beauty parlors and department stores.

To massage your hands, prop your elbows up and use one hand to manipulate the other. Begin with plenty of cream, at the tips of the fingers and rub down each finger, as if you were putting on a glove that was a bit too snug.

Then when each finger and the thumb is done, rub down the hand, the same way you rub up your face when you massage it, with quick, firm but gentle strokes.

For the skin around the fingers, use hot oil. If your hands are very rough and dry, use a heavy cream to massage them and pull gloves on afterwards and wear them to bed. If you use sleeping gloves have them quite large. And daytimes be careful to use large enough gloves. They are easier on the hands and this year they happen to be smart.

STANDARDS ARE BUSINESS NEED, ROTARIANS HEAR

Can't Live Without Them, Edward F. Flynn Says at Conference

Menasha—"We might as well attempt to live in this modern age without laws as without business standards," Edward F. Flynn, St. Paul, former director of Rotary International, told delegates to the tenth district rotary convention in a vocational service conference at St. Mary high school auditorium Monday afternoon.

Speaking on the Rotary ideal of service before more than 100 Rotarians, Flynn explained the necessity of business standards and codes, and encouraged the development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service.

"Working from acquaintance as the basis of service and service as the basis of business, we come to business as business methods as the basis of Rotary," he said. "If we are to succeed in our purpose of making of every business profession—a science, business standards or codes of correct business practice are absolutely necessary."

"The adoption of standards by professions and business in many instances is sufficient proof that they are necessary. If Rotary is instrumental in securing each year for the next twenty years the adoption of 20 business codes, it need offer no excuses for its being."

Urges Fair Play
Flynn compared business to sports and stated that the same standards of fair play applied for both. Although he admitted that the professional men may have greater need for codes of ethics than the so-called business man, he stated that it is essential that all branches of business have standards.

Flynn lamented the presence of the lawyer-criminal in the legal profession, but explained the work of the American Bar Association, and the Commercial Law League of America, and lauded their canons of ethics. The work of such organizations in a single profession corresponds to the work of the Rotary clubs in general business activity, he pointed out.

While public opinion has practically eliminated the advertisement of "quack" physicians, the country has not succeeded in ridding itself of them," he stated. Associations are needed in this field, as well as in the legal profession, in establishing and maintaining a code of ethics, he said.

He outlined examples of nefarious practices in various professions and business fields, to illustrate the need for further establishment of high business standards, but stated that Rotarians met this situation face to face, working to rid the ranks of their respective professions of those who prey upon the public, and are chargeable with unfair if not criminal practices.

Advertising Essential
"Advertising is essential for the success of business," he said. "It has emerged from an uncertain line of business to a profession building high. The Tell the Truth slogan and maintenance of ethical standards in advertising are illustrated by the Saturday evening Post, and the story of Cyrus Curtis, its publisher."

Flynn outlined what he believed to be unfair methods in several fields of business, in further support of the creation of business standards.

He also spoke briefly on the work of Rotary toward encouragement of the advancement of understanding, good will and international peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men, united in a Rotary ideal of service.

"If we are sincere in our alleged desire for permanent world peace, let us go on record now as being in favor of peace in time of war, of conscription, not only the lives of the finest men in the world, but of taking possession of all industries. Let us conscript all wealth, and war will not be so popular in the future as it has been in the past. Rotary will then have done much to accomplish its sixth object, world peace."

Need Of Service
"If you are a manufacturer or exporter endeavoring to do business in some other country, do not believe or contend that you are unable to do so because you cannot speak the language of the country. That is not by any means so important as the strict observance of the language that every man, woman and child in the world understands, the language of service."

William Wagner, Sturgeon Bay, president at luncheon meeting, and the St. Mary high school band entertained under the direction of the Rev. Joseph Becker. Following Flynn's address, the meeting was devoted to general discussion of problems involved in vocational service.

Thomas Conlin of Chrysal Falls opened a discussion of the extent to which happiness is profitable to business and its application to vocational service; and P. J. Harwood of Appleton began a discussion of vocations as something to live in, or to get a living out of. After a short talk by Harwood, a number of problems in present day adherence to practically business methods and Rotary ethics were presented from the floor.

Clarence Jaspersen of Wisconsin discussed the relations of employer and employee relations. In the absence of Ralph S. Wiltrout, who was unable to attend the conference, a discussion of Buying and Selling Relations was opened by Karl Maithio of Vaukasau, and a discussion of relations with competitors was opened by Orris Brightman of Green Bay.

25 Monkeys Escape; 3 Yet Missing

Columbus, Ohio—(AP)—The downtown section of Columbus, transformed yesterday into a jungle scene by the escape of 25 monkeys from a zoo truck, was quiet today with only three of the jungle animals unaccounted for.

For more than four hours monkeys scammed over the downtown buildings, flagpoles and trees in the statehouse yard, but firemen and police, armed with many curious citizens, finally captured the majority of them.

One of the animals was brought in by a citizen, but it died of exposure. The escape occurred when one of the monkeys released the catch on a cage door while they were being transferred from the winter quarters to the zoo.

Carl Evans, who was driving the truck, then went to the zoo headquarters to count the monkeys to determine how many were freed. A catenary wire left the door of the central cage open, and the entire lot scammed to freedom.

Police radio cruisers were sent to the north end last yesterday where six monkeys played havoc with a garden. The police corralled five of these dainty gurgles but the other scammed up a tree.

After careful consideration of the problem a policeman procured a garden hose and turned it on the monkey. The animal fell into a policeman's arms after being thoroughly drenched.

No trace of three missing monkeys has been found.

DAIRY PRODUCTS PRICES DECLINE

Fall Two Points from March 15 to April 15, Bureau Reports

(Post-Crescent-Washington Bureau) —Declination—Prices of dairy products declined two points during the month from March 15 to April 15, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics announces. On April 15, dairy prices were 27 points lower than on the same date a year ago.

Seasonal advances in the prices of vegetables and fruits, particularly potatoes and apples, brought farm prices up somewhat during the month from March 15 to April 15, but were offset by the dairy, poultry and other live stock, cotton, rye, flax, and hay declines.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reports that the dairy industry has been forced to put a larger proportion of its milk into manufactured products and has thus brought down the price on the products as well as on fluid milk.

In regard to Wisconsin's agricultural outlook, the Bureau reports: "Wisconsin cash crops, with the exception of potatoes, are not being increased materially. Practically all parts of the state have been affected by declining land values. A 40 per cent increase in the acreage of soybeans is intended."

COMMITTEES OF COUNCIL TO BE NAMED TONIGHT

Aldermen to Receive Another Petition Protesting Trough Removal

Kaukauna—Standing committees for the year will be appointed by Mayor B. W. Fargo at the first regular meeting of the new city council at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the council chambers of the municipal building. After the appointments, bills will be allowed.

One of the first matters of business expected to come before the new council is a petition signed by a number of residents and business men of the south side protesting the removal of the watering trough at the intersection of Dodge and Crooks-ave. This is the second petition growing out of the recent removal of the trough. The first petition was filed with 35 signers asking that the trough be allowed to remain. The matter was referred to the board of public works.

That meeting was the last of the old council before it adjourned sine die. Mayor Fargo did not name the new committees at that time. The new petition alleges that there was no meeting of the board of public works between the time it was referred to the board and the time workmen began to rip out the fountain.

The petition asks from what source of authority the orders were issued and at what time the first petition and protest received consideration of the board of public works. The petition states that the "action of the city authorities in removing the fountain has been extremely high handed and shows a great lack of regard for the wishes of the citizens."

Pratt's report.

Examiner Pratt held that the application should not be granted on the grounds that it would increase facilities in an over-quota zone and that the two stations had not fully used the facilities they have, although he held that they would give good programs and were otherwise well prepared to operate a useful station, with educational programs of great benefit.

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Miles Away means only minutes away by telephone

Perhaps your family is scattered. So many families are these days, -- a son working in a far off city, a daughter away at school. -- Yet those miles between you and the absent ones are only a matter of minutes by telephone.

Why not call that absent son or daughter today? It will mean so much to them to hear your voice. And it is the next best thing to having them with you.

Telephone visits are inexpensive. Why not form the habit of regular telephone visits with absent friends or members of the family?

BUY PAINT and EXPERT ADVICE

The paint industry each year has made it increasingly easier for homeowners to do "little jobs around the place." The Boss painter will attend to the more important undertakings; but you can freshen up a line of fences, or make flower boxes and trellises glisten in the sun; you can do over chairs and tables and wicker furniture; you can make a gloomy pantry or closet smile once more, and varnish, enamel or lacquer an ice box that has seen years of service, until neighbors think it is new.

It is characteristic of the modern merchant to sell more than paint, more than varnish, more than enamel, more than lacquer, etc. With the bargain comes helpful advice, friendly counsel, information which will make it easier for you to buy and easier for you to do the work.

Come down some day, and prove that it is an important truth of modern merchandising.

Mad Pursuit
BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

SYNOPSIS: Nora Lake's dislike for Nicholas Thayer turns into sympathy when she nurses the embittered painter through an illness caused by an infected hand. Her father, realizing that his quest of art has deprived the motherless girl of a home, would like Nicholas to wed her, but her initial interest in the man is due to his being the brother of the Jonathan Thayer she once had met.

When Julian plans to marry Mrs. Nevvers, Nora, bringing Nicholas the news, finds him disconsolate because his painting hand is paralyzed. Impulsively she asks him to take her away. Married in Naples, they set out for Albany, but Nicholas drowns himself on the first night's sleep. Then, realizing his thoughtfulness in providing a home for her, Nora weeps in bitter self-reproach.

CHAPTER 12
APPRAISING EYES
NORA sat in the old city station, her huge bundled coat about her feet. From time to time she glanced up at the clock and then with apprehension at the station doors. How many times in the last hour had she turned with a trembling intensity as some stranger passed her. She had thought of running away, of refusing to meet Nicholas, family face to face. But that was what her father would have done, and knowing it she sat on. Would it be Jon who came to meet her? Or that step-sister, Damon?

She wondered miserably if she could go through with it. But she would. She must. There was only one thing she wanted now, the lips a little quiet and peace. She did not want to come alive again; for that would hurt too much. But a sky and a garden and trees. They couldn't hurt you.

No one had come for her. Perhaps no one ever would. The doctor had sent the wireless for her, to Jon and to her own people.

Then glancing up, she saw Jonathan Thayer. She would have known him anywhere though it was five years since she had seen him. The pale clear-cut face, the lips a little insolent, and that air of cold reserve.

She looked at him again, glancing uncertainly about, studying the people. She waited. He would smile when he saw her, he would remember her at once. For the first time a little throb of feeling seemed to break through the ice at her heart.

He met her eyes as he came forward, hesitated, stood before her with his soft hat in his hand:

"I'm Jonathan Thayer. Are you—"

"Yes," she answered almost instinctively.

He had not recognized her. At first she could not believe it. She understood his expression. It was one of horrified dismay. His eyes raked her in silent criticism. She still wore the blue suit and scarlet blouse.

"I hope you haven't been waiting long," Jon was saying, "I was out when the wire came saying, on what train you would arrive."

He was studying her with quick glances. What a slim long-legged wild little creature she was with that white face and under a fierce control. She could have borne his pity, but his frank disapproval was unbearable. She disliked him violently.

"Of course you must have something to eat first," he said.

He acted as though nothing had happened, as he asked for her trunk check and found she had no trunk. There was only one thing she would part with. That was Nicholas's painting of the peasant woman; she clung to it, in spite of his offer to have it put with her bags.

"Could you walk a block or two? There's quite a small place, but perhaps it would be more quiet there."

He was taking her there because he was ashamed of her. She hoped she would never have to see him again after this meeting. What it meant that everything was swept away, her dream of security in the old house in the country? Nothing mattered but that she should leave this heartless man who did not show by a single change of expression that he had suffered.

He walked beside her to the revolving doors, pushed them open and joined her on the sidewalk.

As she stood there something happened to her. She was alive after a long, slow death. Her eyes swam with tears. It was good to be alive, even to suffer. She turned to look at Jonathan Thayer, but he was staring ahead, waiting for the traffic.

He said nothing as they walked to the restaurant. She felt she might burst into tears before this boy who showed so plainly that he had not wanted to see her; and never wanted to see her again.

Two waiters gave every attention. Jon Thayer seemed to draw out in others a desire to serve him; or perhaps it was his careless manner of being used to money. Nora was keenly aware of this. Her antagonism made her more sensitive to each small gesture.

"Four cable came about a week ago," Jon said, avoiding her eyes and speaking with a hard composure. "Damon and my step-father asked me to tell you that you are to come to them as soon as they are free. Unfortunately, we have some cousins with us now and the house is crowded or I should take you home with me."

"Oh no," Nora answered, "it isn't necessary. Perhaps I can tell you anything you want me to—and then I'll go." She stopped, catching her lower lip between her teeth.

"Not here! Not now!" he said as a waiter appeared.

"Have you ever been to this city before?" Jon asked. "Not had when you got used to it. Although I wouldn't live here except that I work in one of the beastly warehouses down by the river. My father owned it," he ended.

She could not talk about desultory things, and when the waiter brought the chicken she found she could not eat. Her eyes filled with tears and she had to fight to keep them back. The terrible part was that she was not crying for Nicholas, for anything except, perhaps her own bitter disillusion.

He met her eyes and his hand on the table clenched, but he talked casually until she had control of herself.

"You're not eating anything," he said.

"You're not doing very well yourself."

She closed her eyes for a moment and Jon saw the sweep of dusky lashes on her cheeks, the weary gaze of her slim long body. A wild very little thing, with a haunting charm, perhaps, that he had been too hurt to see at first. He said, leaning toward her:

"I don't like to take you to a hotel tonight. But I don't know what else to do."

"I have an aunt who lives here, a Mrs. Durant. I haven't seen her since I was eight. But I called to her too, so she knows it, and I can go there."

"But I'll come tomorrow to talk to you home. Damon wants to see you. Do you think that you could come there?"

"Oh yes," she said, thinking that the quicker it was over, the better.

The waiter brought them small cups of black coffee. The silence between them became charged with all they dared not say. Jon put down his cup; it rattled in the saucer and he said in a hoarse voice:

"God, how could he do it?"

She saw his brilliant eyes searching her face as though he would tear out her secret.

"I should have known. But I didn't know—" she put her hand against her lips.

He drew back. Her emotion was displeasing to him for he was master of himself again as he answered.

"None of us can know. I don't know that we have any right to stop a person who has no desire to go on."

She could look at him quite steadily now. He condoned his brother's suicide. There was a faint echo in her mind from long ago, her father's voice crying that a man who killed himself had a rare and splendid courage.

Leaving the restaurant, Jonathan walked beside her with an air of easy arrogance. He constantly antagonized her by seeming to make her more aware each moment of the bitter wrong she had done by marrying Nicholas.

Is she could only lean toward him and say, "Oh Jon, what's happened to you? Once long ago you were different. Don't you remember?"

The dreadful thing that lay between them was that Nicholas was drowned and she should have stopped him from doing so.

TARIFF BOARD TO MAP COURSE UNDER NEW LAW

President Hoover Prepared to Accept Findings of Commission

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1931, By Post Pub. Co.
Washington—(C.A.)—The debate between Senator Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader of the senate, and Julius Barnes, chairman of the board of the United States Chamber of Commerce, on the question of reducing tariff rates so as to revive world trade will probably be settled by the Hoover administration by pointing to the tariff commission.

The president is gradually re-making the commission, which he hopes will really investigate the facts of every schedule and recommend changes in accordance with the law. Mr. Hoover is prepared to accept the findings of the commission. This means that if the commission operates the flexible provisions as the framers of the law really intended, the United States will really adjust its tariff laws to meet changing economic conditions.

Under the last administration, the commission recommended certain changes to the president but many of them were pigeon-holed without action. It is the plan now to let the tariff commission decide and the president will follow.

Perhaps it will take several months or even years to establish this firmly as a policy but Mr. Hoover is prepared to go along with the idea in the hope that it will satisfy all interests but that it will provide the best compromise possible on all conflicting interests.

Different Viewpoints
Thus Mr. Watson and Mr. Barnes will probably argue vaguely about various schedules and about the general principle of the tariff but the important thing will be that the political leaders will view the tariff as a political and the Barnes group of business leaders will think of it as an economic problem. To reconcile the conflicting views is not possible, especially with a presidential campaign coming on. But to place the burden on the tariff commission and let each tariff schedule stand on its own feet is something which the political group can hardly assail, for the commission is the creature of congress and has support in both political parties.

Altogether different attitude will prevail in congress, to when once the tariff commission begins to function. For years it has been the dream of presidents that the tariff might be taken out of politics. Or that at least the tariff commission might become as important an institution as the Federal Reserve Commission and as free from outside influence. The difficulty hitherto has been that the Republican party has been so strongly committed to protection in every instance, irrespective of the merits, that the commission has been unable to place the political horizon more than they have the economic factors involved.

With a split inside the Republican ranks, the chances of a public opinion backing up a non-partisan and economic treatment of the tariff by the new commission are regarded as considerably brighter than they have been before. President Hoover, at any rate, believes that in one way to settle the present tariff debate here, and it may coincide with a European customs agreement among the nations across the Atlantic, in which case world trade would probably receive its greatest stimulus.

Canada's Newest Railroad Goliath

Mighty juggernaut of the rails, this powerful locomotive—one of the largest in the world—soon will be used in freight and passenger service in the Canadian Rockies. On a level track it can haul a 150-car freight train more than a mile in length. Radically new in better design, the three-cylinder oil-burning engine weighs, with its tender, 785,000 pounds and is nearly 100 feet long. The locomotive will be exhibited in the Windsor Station of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal.

Your Birthday

If May 6th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 8:30 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger hours are from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 4:30 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 7:10 p. m. to 8:25 p. m.

May 6th promises, according to its planetary aspects, to be a day fraught with some unexpected trouble which may unfavorably affect your future. In the evening, conditions undergo a sudden change, and the atmosphere will favor social activities and promote concern.

A child born on this May 6th will be obedient and winsome. It will be trustful and too credulous for its own good. Experience will, in its case, prove to be a good teacher, and, as it matures, it will learn to love all and to trust only a few. Its disposition will be affectionate.

Born on May 6th, you are hesitant and afraid to go ahead on your own. There is no excuse for such an attitude, as your intuition is well developed, your mind is keen, and your ability cannot be gainsaid. Notwithstanding these invaluable traits, you, when a problem arises for settlement just cannot make up your mind. You are very strong on offering advice to others, and can save them, but you are incapable of saving yourself. Many fine opportunities will come your way—more than to the lot of the average person. You will let them slip, because of your lack of decision.

Your disposition is an equitable one, in your judgment of others, you always display great tolerance. You fill your mind with good thoughts so that there is no room left for bad ones. You are popular with your friends, and loved by all who comprise your family circle.

You have high ideals and sound principles, and delight rather in the simple than in the ostentatious life. You are religiously inclined without being dogmatic or wedded to any one form of ritual. Your horoscope denotes a useful life and one well spent. The retrospect will, however, always be tinged with the "what-might-have-been."
